

Requiring HDTV receivers to implement copy protection measures will deprive citizens of the ability to time shift programming, which they have enjoyed for many years. This would prevent citizens from exercising their fair use rights, and would tip the balance of power between consumers and content providers. This is against the public good, and I urge you not to go forward.